2012 was an incredible growing season, therefore we were blessed with incredible wines. The vines were so beautifully balanced that we were shocked by the size of the crop load. No growing season is easy, but 2012 presented few challenges. A mild spring led to a good fruit set. Summer and fall brought warm temperatures, but no heat waves. All the fruit enjoyed a long, slow ripening. After the previous two vintages it is nice to know there will be wine for everyone.

2012 Six Degrees is a dark, bold, seductively rich and age worthy Cabernet Sauvignon. This is one of the most fun wines I have ever produced and I hope you will enjoy drinking this gorgeous wine as much as I enjoyed producing it.
